The Hollys rises enviably high above the banks of the North Elkhorn on the Newtown Pike, offering verdant vistas from a regal vantage above. Noted for its elegant simplicity, the estate's bold portico & pedimented entablature with dentils displays the strong yet refined manner favored by Bluegrass gentry of the time. Architectural historian Clay Lancaster & others note its similarities with 'Scotland' and 'Colonial Home,' oft-admired contemporary examples of the Grecian style.

In its 177-year history, the estate has borne many names. Originally built in 1845 for physician & farmer William Addison Smith, the home is often attributed to architect John McMurtry. The home may have incorporated an even earlier (possibly Federal) structure into its construction as a wing. Lying high above the creek, it bears good company in its location near the historic Johnson Mill. The Elkhorn was an early hub for commerce, with Scott Countians desiring homes nearby for both convenience and renown. At the turn of the nineteenth century, Mary "Dolly" Withers Brooker operated a spa at the estate, undoubtedly attracting visitors with the tranquil waters below.

In 1939, a new steward christened the home "The Hollys" & commenced a thoughtful restoration led by architect Robert McMeekin. Contemporary materials were sourced extensively, including brick gleaned from the Cherry Spring Presbyterian Church of Newtown, which had also been built by McMurtry. The owners further contributed mahogany woodwork featuring a Grecian motif of "Pan & the wood nymphs" and a mantel sourced from a previous home in St. Louis.

Later owners shared the affinity for the home's careful stewardship, respectfully maintaining its character while artfully adapting it for modern use. Today, the residence anchors the farm's manageable thirty acres. The home works in concert with the outdoors, through the creation of "rooms" framed with purposeful landscaping. Ancient trees grace the manicured grounds, providing a leafy backdrop for entertaining. Significant professional lighting further begets spaces ideal for evening alfresco celebrations.

A well-appointed guest house boasts a first-floor primary suite among its three bedrooms. A converted tobacco barn contributes equine utility with a fine tack room.

The soil surveys that comprise your AOI were mapped at 1:15,800.

Warning: Soil Map may not be valid at this scale.

Enlargement of maps beyond the scale of mapping can cause misunderstanding of the detail of mapping and accuracy of soil line placement. The maps do not show the small areas of contrasting soils that could have been shown at a more detailed scale.

Please rely on the bar scale on each map sheet for map measurements.

 Web Soil Survey URL:
 Coordinate System: Web Mercator (EPSG:3857)

Maps from the Web Soil Survey are based on the Web Mercator projection, which preserves direction and shape but distorts distance and area. A projection that preserves area, such as the Albers equal-area conic projection, should be used if more accurate calculations of distance or area are required.

This product is generated from the USDA-NRCS certified data as of the version date(s) listed below.

Soil Survey Area: Scott County, Kentucky
 Survey Area Data: Version 18, Sep 8, 2021

Soil map units are labeled (as space allows) for map scales 1:50,000 or larger.

The orthophoto or other base map on which the soil lines were compiled and digitized probably differs from the background imagery displayed on these maps. As a result, some minor shifting of map unit boundaries may be evident.
